INTRODUCTION.

1. There have been four Censuses of the Bhopal State since 1881 as shown in the inset. Past and present Censuses.

17th February 1881.
26th February 1891.
1st March 1901.
10th March 1911.

In the first two a modified form of the schedule was adopted, while in the last two the British India schedule was followed. The night of the 10th March, selected for the Final Census in 1911 by the Government of India, was agreed to by the Bhopal Darbar also.
2. The present Census was taken on lines similar to those of 1901, the method adopted for the taking of the Census and the compilation of the results being those embodied in the Central India Code of Census Procedure and Imperial Census Code Part II. Arrangements for Enumeration.
3. The State Census Office was opened in March 1910 and Munshi Saiyad Quadrat Ali was appointed Chief Census Officer for the State. He had previous experience of the Census of 1901. Appointment of Census Officer.
4. As soon as it was notified that the decennial Census would be taken preliminary instructions were issued for the preparation of a Village Register on the model form received from the Provincial Superintendent of Census in Central India. This was compiled shewing the number and names of villages, the number of inhabited houses, and the probable number of Enumerators and Supervisors available. Village Register.
5. The formation of the Census Divisions (of Charges, Circles and Blocks) was next taken in hand. Villages and towns were first divided into one or more Blocks, each containing ordinarily not more than 40 houses and placed in charge of an official called the Enumerator; a group of Blocks, ordinarily 10 to 15 into a Circle, the official-in-charge being designated a Supervisor; and a number of Circles into a Charge, the official responsible being known as a Charge Superintendent. Census Divisions.
6. A Code of Census Procedure for Central India and a Manual of Instructions for Supervisors and Charge Superintendents and a Specimen Enumeration Book containing instructions to the Enumerators with typical entries were issued. All these were received from the Provincial Census Superintendent with translations in Urdu and Hindi. Supplementary instructions were also received on points, which practice proved were not sufficiently explained in the Code or Manual. Code of Census Procedure.
7. The next step taken was the numbering of houses. The definition of a house, adopted in 1901, was altered to make it more precise and illustrated by diagrams. House-numbering.

When all the houses had been numbered a statement shewing the number of houses was prepared and an indent for the requisite number of Census forms made.

The work of house-numbering was started after 15th October 1910 and completed by 15th November.
8. Early in May 1910 the Chief Census Officer with four selected Supervisors and as many Enumerators joined in the Census Conference held at Indore to receive practical training in the work of enumerating and compiling Circle and Charge summaries. This opportunity was also utilised in going through the provisional issue of the Census Code and the Manual of Instructions for Charge Superintendents and Supervisors as well as the Instructions on the cover of the Enumeration Book and in settling all doubtful points. Instruction Schools, &c.
9. The Census Calendar shewing the dates on which the different stages of the operations had to be begun and completed up to the 15th March 1911, issued by the Provincial Superintendent of Census was rigidly adhered to. Census Calendar.
10. The Preliminary Census was started, as laid down in the Code, on the 15th January 1911 in villages and on the 15th February in Bhopal City and other towns. This consisted of the writing up by the Enumerator in the enumeration schedule for each numbered house all the necessary particulars regarding each person ordinarily resident in the house. The information then recorded in the 14 out of the 16 columns (3—16) was, Name, Religion (in the case of Christians the religious sect also), Sex, Civil Condition, Age, Caste, Tribe or Race, Principal Occupation, Subsidiary Occupation, Actual Occupation of the person on whom dependent, Birth-place, Dialect spoken in the household, Literate or Illiterate, Knowledge of English, and certain infirmities. The preliminary record in village areas was finished by February 15th and in Bhopal City and towns by March 1st 1911. Preliminary Enumeration.

The interval between these dates and the Census date was utilised by Supervisors and Charge Superintendents in checking and correcting entries.

Notice to the public.

11. After the completion of the Preliminary Enumeration the village and town dwellers were warned by printed notices and by proclamation to remain in their houses on the night of the 10th March 1911 until the Enumerator visited them, to give all particulars and to mention all persons who were enumerated before but had left or died since, and supply particulars for all new comers and newly born children. This notice in forest areas was given by the headmen of the village, where the Final Census was carried out before dark on the 10th March or the next morning.

Final Enumeration.

12. In the Final Enumeration or the Census Proper each Enumerator went round his Block, after sunset on March 10th with the Enumeration Book in his hand and a pen and ink, as well as with a policeman in the City, checking and correcting the entries made in the Preliminary Enumeration as compared with the actual facts existing on the Census night, by striking out the entries for persons who had left or died and recording information in the different columns of the schedule for all new comers or newly born children. It was commenced at 7 P. M. and completed at midnight, except in jungle areas where it was completed by day-light on the 10th March or carried out on the morning of 11th March.

Recount.

13. The City was affected with plague at the time of the Final Enumeration and a recount was, therefore, made on the 10th July 1911; the result is shewn in the inset.

Town.	Final Enumeration on 10th March.	Recount on 10th July.	Variation.

Provisional Totals.

14. After completing the Final Census on the night of the 10th March 1911, the Enumerators and Supervisors met at centres previously selected to make up their totals on the morning of the 11th. The Enumerators prepared the Abstract at the end of the Enumeration Book showing the number of occupied houses and the total number of persons, males and females in their Blocks. These Abstracts were checked by others and then posted up by the Supervisor in his Circle summary. The Circle summaries were, in their turn, similarly tested and combined into a Charge summary, after which the totals were sent by special messenger with all possible despatch to the Chief Census Officer. On receipt of summaries for all Charges the total for the State, as a whole, was compiled and telegraphed on the 14th March 1911 direct to the Census Commissioner for India and to the Provincial Superintendent of Census at Indore.

In the wild tracts the totals were carried from the Supervisor's headquarters by messengers who were given guards to accompany them at night as a precaution against dangers. The total population for the State, as a whole, according to the Provisional Totals numbered 728,814, of whom 369,325 were males and 359,489 females.

Final Totals.

15. After going through various processes of abstracting, sorting and tabulating the Final Totals were obtained which gave 728,453 persons consisting of 369,365 males and 359,088 females. The Final Figures shewed a decrease of 361 persons amounting to a difference of 4 in 10,000 which speaks well for the general efficiency of the arrangements.

Special industrial schedules.

16. A special Census was taken of persons employed in the industries in which the workers in factories did not number less than 20 persons. This was taken simultaneously with the Census of the general population on March 10th in order to collect correct information regarding recent developments. The forms of this special schedule, received from the Provincial Superintendent of Census, were distributed on the 5th March 1911 to the owners, agents and managers of factories, works, mills, etc., through departmental heads and collected on the morning of the 16th March.

Census Act and regulations.

17. In a preliminary circular the obligations of all public servants and loyal subjects to assist in the taking of the Census were made known, and also a regulation, resembling a Census Act, was issued by the Darbar and published in the State Gazette dated 28th April 1910. All concerned cordially helped in the operations. The demeanour of the people including the jungle tribes such as Gonds, Korkus, etc., was excellent.

Certificates of Merit or Sanads.

18. For good services rendered in the taking of the Census all officials were granted certificates of merit or sanads. The Enumerators and Supervisors received these from the Chief Census Officer of the State, the Charge Superintendents from the Provincial Superintendent of Census in Central India, while the Chief Census Officer received a sanad under the signature of the Hon'ble the Agent to the Governor General in Central India.

Preparation of Final Totals.

19. After the Provisional Totals were despatched, the Enumeration Books for the State were carefully packed by Charges and sent with summaries for the subsequent processes of Abstraction, Tabulation and Compilation to the Central India Census Office at Indore, in charge of a Record-Keeper. A special officer, Mian Arjumand Muhammad Khan, who was a Charge Superintendent for Bhopal City, was selected to control the State establishment and sent to Indore. He arrived here on 23rd March 1911, and remained till April 18th 1913, and then he was deputed to Lucknow to finish the printing work.

The Books were checked with the Circle, Charge and State summaries and arranged by Parganas in racks ready for issue to the slip copyists.

20. These processes were followed as laid down in the Imperial Census Code, Part II, and on instructions from the Provincial Superintendent of Census.

Abstraction, sorting, tabulation and compilation.

21. The system of abstracting entries from the schedule form which was worked in 1901, was followed on the present occasion, with this exception that instead of two slips only one was written up for each person giving all particulars.

Slip System.

22. Before actually issuing the Enumeration Books for the work of copying on to the slips all the entries in the schedules were carefully examined by a special staff of examiners and all obvious errors or omissions were rectified and supplied. Very little correction was needed.

Checking of entries.

23. The regular abstraction work was commenced on the 22nd March 1911 and completed on the 5th June 1911.

Slip copying.

The slips for infirmities were written up separately and statistics were compiled by the Supervisors of the copying gangs.

24. The sorting of the slips was begun on 6th June 1911 and finished on 31st August 1911. The unit of sorting was a Tahsil.

Sorting.

25. The figures for Tables I-VI were obtained from Register A compiled by the Supervisors of copying gangs in which religious distribution by sexes of each Block was shewn. The sorting was accordingly confined to Tables VII-XVIII.

Tabulation and Compilation.

The work of Tabulating the results was carried on along with the sorting. As soon as a unit was sorted, the result was entered in a Sorter's Ticket. When a whole Nizamats was completed Tables VII to XVIII were compiled as below :—

margin. They have all received certificates of merit and deserve praise. I would bring to the notice of Her Highness Nawab Sultan Jahan Begam, G. C. S. I., G.C.I.E., C.I., the excellent services again rendered by the Chief Census Officer, Munshi Saiyad Qudrat Ali in the Census of 1911 as previously in 1901. His varied knowledge of the country and its people was of exceptional service in an undertaking of this kind and I cannot praise too highly the industry and zeal with which he performed these duties, which deserve special recognition.

To Mian Arjumand Muhammad

Khan I am much indebted for the care and zeal with which he supervised the processes of abstraction and compilation at Indore. His services in this connection deserve special notice by the Darbar.

I would express my thanks to Rai Bahadur Munshi Prag Narayan Bhargava, the Proprietor and Babu Manohar Lal, the Superintendent of the Newul Kishore Press, Lucknow who carried out the printing of this report rapidly and well.

REPORT

ON THE

CENSUS OF BHOPAL STATE, 1911.

CHAPTER I.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE POPULATION.

1.—General Description.

The Bhopal State is the principal Musalman State of the Central India Agency and among the Muhammadan States of India stands next in importance to Hyderabad. It is situated in the Bhopal Political Charge lying between 22°32' and 24°4' N and 26°28' and 78°52'E., with an area of 6,902 square miles, and a population of 730,383. It stands on the eastern confines of Malwa, its most eastern district bordering on Bundelkhand and its southern district lying in the Gondwana tract.

Area, Population and Boundary.

It is bounded on the north by the States of Gwalior, Basoda, Kurwai, and Narsinghgarh, the Sironj Pargana of the Tonk State in Rajputana and the Saugor District of the Central Provinces; on the south by the Nerbada river, which separates it from the Hoshangabad District of Central Provinces; on the east by the Saugor and Narsinghpur Districts of the Central Provinces, and on the west by the Gwalior and Narsinghgarh States.

2. The State is divided at present into 3 Nizamats, viz., Nizamat-i-Mashriq, Nizamat-i-Junub and Nizamat-i-Maghrib and 28 Tahsils, for administrative purposes. One Nizamat and 5 Tahsils have been abolished since 1901. The largest Tahsil is Goharganj with an area of 701 square miles, the smallest is Ahmadpur with an area of 123 square miles.

Administrative and Natural Divisions.

The country varies in different parts. Most of the State is situated on the Malwa Plateau, 4,098 square miles lying in this tract and presents the familiar aspect of that region, rolling downs of yellow grass, interspersed with rich fields of black cotton soil. To the south-east, however, it is traversed by a succession of sandstone hills, forming an arm of the great Vindhyan range, while another branch of the same range strikes northwards to the west of the city of Bhopal. To the south lies the main scarp of the Vindhya with the fertile valley of the Nerbada beyond it. The Hilly region occupies 2,804 square miles. The Plateau land is highly fertile and grows wheat, maize, jowar, rice and poppy while the hills are clothed in forest with patches of black soil at their feet.

II.—Area, Population and Density.

3. Statistics of area and population are given in Table I. Proportionate figures will be found in the Subsidiary Tables at the end of this Chapter.

Reference to Statistical Tables.

4. The mean density of the State is 106 per square mile, showing an increase of 9 persons since 1901. The density of population for the districts is—Nizamat-i-Mashriq 118, Nizamat-i-Junub 101 and Nizamat-i-Maghrib 101. In the Natural Divisions the density of population stands at 101 on the Plateau and 113 in the Hilly tract.

Density.

An examination of the density in the contiguous portions of the State and of the two British Districts of Saugor and Hoshangabad shews how much greater the pressure is in British India :—

Saugor	...	...	... 137
Nizamat-i-Mashriq	...	...	... 118

III.—Towns and Villages.

5. For Census purposes a "Town" was held to include all places with a population of 5,000 and over, and places of less than 5,000 inhabitants, as may be considered to have distinct urban characteristics or historic importance.

Definition.

A "City" is a town with a lakh or more inhabitants. No such place exists in the State although Bhopal City has been treated as such for local purposes. Its statistics will be found in the Tables and proportionate figures in Subsidiary Table VI at the end of this Chapter.

Statistics.

6. The statistics of towns and villages will be found in Tables III, IV and V and in Subsidiary Tables III, IV and V at the end of this Chapter. Of the total population of the State only 10 persons in every 100 live in towns and 90 in villages. This accentuates the agricultural nature of the tract, Bhopal City alone having any urban characteristics.

Towns.

7. There are in all 6 towns, of which only the City of Bhopal fulfils the numerical qualification. The average town population is 12,590 a decrease of 6,576 having occurred over the figures of 1901, due to the prevalence of plague in Bhopal, Sehore, Berasia and Ichhawar at the time of taking the Census.

Among the towns are two, viz., Sehore and Ashta which qualified numerically in 1901 but do not do so on this occasion, while 3 have been selected on account of their local importance. The total number of towns has increased by one owing to the addition of Raisen.

Villages.

8. A Census village corresponds to the revenue village; a village with its dakhli or hamlets being considered a single unit. There are 2,985 inhabited villages in the State; villages of "under 500 population" (2,739) predominate. Of the total population 90 in every 100 inhabit villages while 66 in every 100 live in villages of "under 500" population. The average village population is 219. Of the Natural Divisions in the Plateau out of 83 in every 100 who live in villages, 74 live in villages of "under 500" population and 23 in "500—2,000." In the Hilly tract 99 persons in every hundred live in villages while 57 persons inhabit villages of "under 500" population and 37 live in villages of "500—2,000."

IV.—Houses and Families.

9. The definition of a House adopted in 1901 not being found sufficiently clear the following was given and illustrated by diagrams:—

- (1) Any structure other than a dwelling house, such as tent, pavilion, temple, serai, etc., or a site, camping ground, ghât, etc., to which a separate number has been affixed,
- (2) the dwelling place of one or more families with their dependents and resident servants having an independent entrance whether that entrance be from a road, gallery, balcony, corridor, courtyard or otherwise.

Compared with 1901 the average number of persons per house, viz., 5 remains unaltered. The average number of houses per square mile is 24, an increase by 4 since 1901, due to alteration in the definition.

No material difference from the results of 1901 has arisen in the figures of Subsidiary Table VII. The house, except in the city of Bhopal, is a separate entity which can be easily distinguished; occasionally several lie in one courtyard.

In Bhopal City and a few villages round it, where limestone and sandstone abound many houses are constructed and even roofed with stone. Where stone is not found bricks are used the roof being of country tiles. Houses of more than one story are found in the towns, the villages containing one or two such structures often the residence of a local Thakur or a banker. For the rest small huts with frames of bamboo or the common kinds of tree either roofed with sunbaked tiles, grass or mud or regularly thatched form the houses of the agricultural population.

CHAPTER II.

MOVEMENT OF POPULATION.

10. Table II shows the actual variation and the Subsidiary Tables at the end of this Chapter give the variation in relation to density and proportional figures since 1881.

Variation since 1881.

In the Census of 1881 and in that of 1891 full information was not given on this point. In 1901, however, and on the present occasion all details were recorded.

The total population on the present occasion amounts to 730,383, an increase of 59,071, or 9 per cent. since 1901.

In the decades 1881-1891 and 1891-1901 there was a fall of 2,415 or 0·3 per cent. and 285,136 or 30 per cent. Compared with the Census of 1881 the population on the present occasion has decreased by 224,518 or 23·5 per cent.

The increase on the present occasion is due almost entirely to the rebound after the famine of 1900 which very seriously affected the western part of the Central India Agency and especially the Hilly Tracts, causing heavy mortality among those at the two extremes of life.

In the last decade the country was visited by a severe epidemic of plague which affected the Plateau section of the State, for which the plague returns give a figure of 2,725 deaths, but the true figure is considerably higher. The effects of plague were mainly confined to urban area.

11. There have been no artificial stimulants to increase the population such as the extension of irrigation works, industrial developments or the like, the six factories present in the Capital town employ only 542 persons.

Factors affecting
population.

12. The increase is principally restricted to the Nizamati-Junub and Nizamati-Maghrib or the southern and western districts of the State, including the Hilly Natural Division, showing a rise of 12 per cent. while the Plateau shows a rise of only 6 per cent.

Detailed examination.

The density of the State as a whole is 106 persons to the square mile. The most populous district being the Nizamati-Mashriq showing 118 persons including the City of Bhopal. Excluding the city the density gives 90 persons to the square mile.

The mean density per square mile is 101 on the Plateau and 113 in the Hilly Tract. The Hilly Tract figures, examined in detail, shew that the rise has everywhere been considerable, especially along the actual ranges the Tahsils of Garhi, Raisen and Mardanpur showing very high percentages of variation, viz, 111, 65 and 45, respectively.

CHAPTER III.

MIGRATION.

13. The Table dealt with under this heading is Table XI concerned with the birth-places of those enumerated.

Reference to statistics.

14. The last Census, following on the heels of a severe famine, found a sadly diminished population. Since then no famine has attacked the State, nor has any severe distress outside caused a great flow inwards.

Conditions affecting Migration.

Trade has progressed but has not contributed materially to the increase, while harvesting being over before the Census took place no influx occurred on that account.

Of the 730,383 persons enumerated in the State, 673,348 or 92 per cent. were born within the State leaving only 8 per cent. born outside, of whom Gwalior sent 2 per cent. and the Hoshangabad district above 1 per cent. The figures for other States and districts of British India are all below one per cent. each.

15. Of those born beyond India, 37 persons, who came from Afghanistan, were mostly cloth merchants and fruit sellers, 21 from Arabia were cooks, shopkeepers, the being either religious beggars or visitors.

Statistics for discussion.

The total number of immigrants from other States and parts of India, beyond Central India, was 56,877 in 1911, as compared with 85,957 in 1901, or a decrease of 31 per cent.

The emigrants to other States in the Agency and Parts of India were 93,335 in 1911. No comparison is possible with the figures for this class as no record was kept in 1901.

16. It will be seen that the State has lost by migration 27,102 persons in Central India and 36,458 on the whole. This decrease is due to a return to normal conditions as the severe famine of 1900, caused a considerable number of people to enter the State from the contiguous districts of Gwalior, Indore, Narsinghgarh, Rajgarh, Khilchipur and Dewas who afterwards returned home.

Result of migration.

Distributed by districts the Nizamati-Junub shows 39 per cent. or the highest proportion of home-born population, the Nizamati-Maghrib showing the least, 25 per cent. only. Of the Natural Divisions, the Plateau shews 57 per cent. of home-born and the Hilly Tract 43.

Subsidiary Table III gives the proportional migration to and from each district and Natural Division. Of the 8 per cent. of immigrants, 6 per cent. were born in the contiguous States while 2 per cent. came from beyond.

17. Of the States, which chiefly affected the migration, Gwalior sent 16,573 and received 21,407, Indore sent 2,538 and received 12,743, Narsinghgarh 3,473 and 4,372, Rajgarh 1,333 and 3,364, Dewas 290 and 1,132. The only curious figures are those of immigrants from Bundelkhand of whom Orchha alone borders the State. Bijawar (115), Charkhari (13), Chhatarpur (44), Datia (625), Orchha (614), Panna (166), and Samthar (8), due principally to the passengers by rail who were enumerated on the 10th March 1911 in Bhopal territory.

CHAPTER IV.

RELIGION.

- Reference to statistics. 18. The tables dealt with in this Chapter are Tables VI, XVII and XVIII and the Subsidiary Tables at the end of this Chapter.
- A record of sects was not made on this occasion. Subsidiary Table I shows the general distribution of the population by religion for successive censuses.
- Distribution of population by Religion. 19. Out of a total population of 730,383 no fewer than 584,102 or about 80 per cent. are Hindus; 81,996 or 11 per cent. Musalmans; 58,611 or 8 per cent. Animists. The total number of persons belonging to all the other religions shown, viz., Jains, Sikhs, Aryas, Parsis, Christians and Jews, is only 5,674 or about 1 per cent. of the entire population.
- Variation. 20. The most noticeable points are that Hindus have risen by 20 per cent., while Animists have fallen by 36 per cent. since 1901.
- The Musalman and Jain population has fallen by 2 and 20 per cent., respectively.
- Christians show a rise of 10 per cent.
- Religions of Urban and Rural population. 21. While the urban and rural population shows that Musalmans, Jains, Christians and Parsis are mainly town-dwellers, the Jains being traders, the Musalmans either officials in the different departments of the State with their dependants and servants or are shop-keepers. The Christians are almost all Europeans, Anglo-Indians or Indians. They are either State employes, descendants of the old French localised Families or in the service of the Railway, a large number of them is quartered at Bhopal itself.
- The Hindus and Animists mainly inhabit villages.

HINDUS.

- Variation by Religion. 22. The Hindu population has increased by about 22 per cent. since 1881, but this increase has occurred at the present Census. An increase of 12 per cent. took place on the Plateau and of 35 in the Hilly Tracts.
- In Urban areas their superiority is diminished by the increase of the Musalman population. Their ratio in Urban areas is 45 per cent. and in Rural 84 per cent.

ANIMISTS.

23. The Animist class included all persons who, when asked to state their religion, replied that they were not Hindus, Musalmans, etc. and belonged in fact to none of the recognised forms of faith. All Animists are members of jungle tribes such as Bhil, Gond, Korku, etc.

The name Animist serves to denote a person, who believes in the existence and omnipresence of spirit bodies or souls of whom the most powerful are considered divine beings with powers for good and evil in this world. These spirits are untrammelled in their movements and will enter into and abide temporarily or permanently in some object living or lifeless which then becomes an object of awe and worship.

The term "Animist" comprised the following nine tribes on this occasion:—

Bhil, Bhilala, Gond, Kol, Kotwal, Kirar, Korku, Mina and Saharia. Of these Gonds predominate being met with in the southern district which lies in the Gondwana tract.

The greater part of these tribes live in Nizam-at-i-Junub along the Vindhya range.

Compared with the figures of 1901, their population shows a fall of 36 per cent. due to most of the tribe having returned themselves as Hindus. The members of the tribes returned as Hindus and Animists is given on the fly leaf of Table VI.

MUSALMANS.

24. In 1901, Musalmans stood third in order of numerical importance, but the reduction in the Animistic population has brought them into the second place.

They are chiefly found in the Urban area, where they number 52 per cent., in the Rural area, their ratio is 23 per cent. only.

The Musalman population on the Plateau shows a decrease of 7 per cent. owing to the presence of plague in Bhopal city and other towns which are situated in this tract, while in the Hilly tracts there is a corresponding increase, of 20 per cent, most of the people in Bhopal city having moved into the district.

JAINS.

25. The Jain population has fallen by 20 per cent. since 1901, but has gained 15 per cent. since 1881. The fall on this occasion, which amounted to 29 per cent. on the Plateau, was due to the plague which prevailed in Bhopal City and Suburbs. These traders having left the towns on account of the epidemic a rise of 2 per cent. resulted in the Hilly Part.

CHRISTIANS.

26. The rise in the Christian community by 10 per cent. on the figures of 1901, is due to the employment of more Europeans and Anglo-Indians in the service of the State and the employees on the Railway.

The Plateau shows a rise of 9 per cent. and the Hilly Part of 100 per cent. there being none of this class in that Natural Division in 1901.

OTHERS.

27. The Aryas, Sikhs, Parsis and Jews fall under this denomination making in all 362. -

CHAPTER V.

AGE, SEX AND CIVIL CONDITION.

PART I.—Age.

28. The Tables discussed in this part are Table VII, giving the distribution of the whole population by age, sex, civil condition and religion, and Table XIV, giving similar statistics for selected castes. The Subsidiary Tables are given at the end of the text.

Reference to statistics.

29. Of all the data collected in the Census those of age are the least reliable. Knowledge of age is uncertain while other factors tend to cause a concealment of the truth. The proportion of those who have but a vague idea of the year of their birth is large and the tendency to “lump” on round figures is, therefore, very great while this is accentuated by the daily use of many common expressions of a collective class such as das-bis, ten or twenty, bis-pachis, twenty or twenty-five, pachis-tis, twenty-five or thirty, etc. Among females there is also a deliberate tendency to understate the age of unmarried girls who are nearing or have reached the age of puberty. Those who are in the prime of life understate ages and those who are over 50 exaggerate them.

Age statistics how far reliable.

With a view, however, to secure as correct an age return as possible, the enumerators were instructed that when the reply for the entry in column 7 received was manifestly absurd from the appearance of the person censused, they should invariably be asked to cite a few of the most prominent incidents and try to find out how old he really was and then enter it.

Admittedly these figures would be of no use were it not that the sources of errors are constant and the figures at different enumerations, therefore, comparable.

30. Vital statistics are maintained in the State, but the figures are not reliable and the applications of these as a check would be valueless.

Vital statistics.

31. There is nothing to note between the different religions in the earlier ages except that the number returned as between 1 and 2 years of age is about half of that under 1 year. The very small number returned under 1—2 appears to be due to the fact that children under one year were entered as “Infants,” many children of one year and over were still at breast and being popularly regarded as Bachcha, were shown as such in the schedules and accordingly entered as under 1 year in tabulating.

Distribution of each sex in main religion.

At 5—10 the number of girls except among the Musalmans and Jains is less, due to the fact that Hindus, as a rule, are bound to marry their daughters before that age is reached and if unmarried over 10 are apt to be shown as 10.

Among the Banias great difficulty is experienced in securing wives, and higher prices are paid for older girls. This is probably a cause of the larger number of females at 0—10.

The number of males and females at the ages 20—25, 25—30 and 30—35 is higher in comparison with other periods.

At age-period 60—65 the number of both sexes is higher than either that precedes or succeeds it, due to the use of the formula sath painsath.

32. Subsidiary Table II shows the proportional age distribution of 1,000 of each sex of certain selected castes. It is not necessary to discuss these figures in great detail; only a few results will be briefly noticed.

Selected castes.

Castes which occupy a higher status in society have a larger number of males in age-periods, 15-40 and 40 and over per 1,000, viz., Sanadhya Brahmans

Caste and Tribes.	Number of male children.
	Under 5	5—12

(415 and 232), Porwal Banias (425 and 204), Pathan (437 and 241), while castes of lower standing and jungle tribes have smaller proportions at these ages, viz., Dhangar (260 and 25), Gujar (385 and 124), Mina (135 and 3), Gand (405 and 254).

Amongst the higher classes the proportion of children is smaller than it is amongst the aboriginal tribes, as shown in the inset

PART II.—Sex.

Reference to statistics.	33. Table VII shews the distribution by sexes for the State as a whole and for each district and Natural Division in each Religion and for 19 age-periods. The Subsidiary Tables at the end of this Part explain the main features of statistics in proportionate parts and also furnish further information relating to sexes.
Accuracy of the return.	34. The return of females is always less accurate than that of males owing to the peculiar customs obtaining among the people of India. Precautionary measures were, however, taken to see that no females were left out. Influential men of each community were requested to test the work of the enumerators and accompany them when necessary or where concealment of females was likely to occur, or high officials or persons were concerned.
General proportion of the sizes in actual population.	35. In most European countries the females outnumber the males which is not the case in India. Here for India, as a whole, there are only 953 females to 1,000 males, Central India, as a whole, shews 949 females to 1,000 males, Indore 947, Gwalior 903, Rewah 1,013 whereas this State, as a whole, shows 971 females to 1,000 males, the figure in the Hilly Tract almost reaching equality, rising to 992, the Plateau showing only 955.
Proportion in different parts of the State.	36. Great diversity is exhibited in the different districts of the State in the proportion of the sexes.
	The proportions of females for all religions is nearly equal in the Nizamati-Junub; next comes the Nizamati-Mashriq and then Nizamati-Maghrib, the city of Bhopal giving 935 only. In the Urban population there is always a predominance of males.
Proportion in natural population.	37. The above figures refer to the actual population enumerated in the State. The proportion of the sexes is, however, affected by migration from and to the State. To ascertain the proportion in the natural population, those who came to the State from outside are deducted from the total while those born in the State but enumerated outside are added. Calculating thus the proportion of females to 1,000 males for the whole State is 929, which shews that emigration highly affects this sex proportion by taking away males.
Proportion in main religions.	38. The Parda System being rigidly observed among Musalmans, the concealment of females was likely to affect the proportions especially in the City where this community predominates. But the instructions have been carried out faithfully and there is no great fall in the number of females.
	The proportion of Musalman females in the State as a whole is 934 to 1,000 males, whereas the Hindus shew 965. In the city, where the Musalman population is numerically larger, there are 958 Musalman females as against 904 Hindu women. The Jains come next with 978 females showing a higher ratio than Hindus in the State as a whole and also in the city and districts, except the Nizamati-Junub. The higher ratio is probably due to the males emigrating for works leaving their womenfolk at home. The other religions are not numerically important.
	The Animists, as usual, shew the highest ratio 1,090 females to 1,000 males.
Comparison with previous Census.	39. Between 1891 and 1901 the proportion rose in each religion, but has fallen in 1911, except in the case of Animists who shew a rise of 11 per cent.
Proportion at different ages.	40. Subsidiary Table II shews that the proportion of females to 1,000 males in the first year of life is 1,011 for all religions. Taking the religions separately, the corresponding proportion is 999 among Hindus, 747 amongst Jains, 1,039 amongst Musalmans and 1,101 among the Animistic tribes. This shews that in all main religions, except the Jains, the number of males is less than females at this period owing to ignorance as explained in Part I—Age.
Proportion in different castes.	41. Subsidiary Table IV gives the proportion of the sexes in different castes. They are so diverse that it is rather difficult to draw any general conclusion from the figures. The proportion of females among the trading class is highest owing to the males emigrating on business, otherwise the proportion of females to males is higher in the Animistic tribes and lower classes of Hindus and Musalmans. People of higher status shew a lower proportion of females than males.

42. The principal causes of high female mortality are probably :—

Cause^{ion}.
female

(1) Neglect of female infants.—As a general rule male children are more desired and female children are apt to be neglected.

(2) Premature sexual intercourse and child bearing.—This fact affects their longevity causing early death, as the statistics at age-periods 10-15 and 15-20 of all religions shew.

(3) Hard life of a widow.—The presence of widows in the family of Hindus and Musulmans is not regarded favourably, especially young widows. They are given drudgery of the household work to do and generally indifferently looked after.

43. Males exceed females everywhere. The imperative necessity of having a son causes Hindus and Musalman to resort to various practices in order to increase the probability of male issue. Sex and ceremony

PART III.—Civil Condition.

44. The marriage customs of India differ materially from those of European countries. In the inset table statistics of marriage for Bhopal, with those of India in general and England are compared.

Marriage is obligatory among Hindus who form the bulk of the population, this act being considered a religious duty. A Hindu must marry and beget a son or adopt one to perform his last funeral ceremonies as the only means of saving the souls of those who have departed from the torments of hell. He must also see that his daughters are married before they attain puberty ; the presence in the house of unmarried girls who have reached this period bring social stigma on the family.

In the case of Musalman and Animists, though the religious sanction is wanting, marriage still is equally general, partly owing to Hindu example and partly to the conditions of life where a wife is a necessity both as a domestic servant and often also as a helpmate in work.

In India marriage is subject to restrictions unknown in Europe, where it is generally determined by the personal choice of the couple ; there is also no restriction to widow marriage. In India child marriage is prevalent, while the rules governing marriage, exogamy, endogamy and the various restrictions imposed by prohibitive degrees of relationship and the concomitant difficulty of finding husbands, all tend to encourage it.

Although the practice of early marriage is very general, cohabitation is not contemporaneous with marriage, but ordinarily takes place after the girl has had her first menses, which in this country often occurs at the age of 14. This is the popular age at which it is considered that a husband and wife should live together. In many cases a second ceremony called guna takes place before cohabitation commences, the girl lives chiefly with her parents until this ceremony is completed.

While child marriage is less common among Musalman, it is nevertheless very general owing to the influence of Hindu surroundings. The Animists, whenever they come into touch with more civilised Hindu communities, gradually adopt this custom, regarded by them as a sign of superior rank and status.

Widows, except in certain lower classes, are prohibited from remarrying, though widowers are not only allowed to marry but even to marry more than one wife. Widow marriage is apparently the touchstone of social status and is a more delicate test than the adoption of the custom of child marriage even. Another incentive to child marriage is expense. Among the higher classes bridegrooms have usually to be paid for and the older the girl is the higher the price that can be demanded ; hence the eagerness of fathers to settle their daughters as soon as possible.

45. Tables VII and XIV and the Subsidiary Tables at the end contain the figures discussed. These figures show that 45 out of every 100 men are unmarried, 78 per cent. being under 15 years of age.

Statistics.

At 15-20, 38 per cent. are married, while at 20-40 the figure rises to 78 per cent. At the age of 20 and over, 84 girls in every 100 are married, while 12 are already widows before they are 40. Unmarried girls of mature age are here found mostly among high caste Rajputs and Saiyads owing to a difficulty of finding suitable husbands.

Mus and Musalmans.

46. The predominance of Hindus makes their returns very similar to those for the State as a whole.

In 100 Hindu males 45 are unmarried, 49 married and 6 widowed, as compared with 45, 49, and 6 respectively in the general population.

In 100 Hindu females 31 are unmarried, 51 married, and 17 widowed as compared with 32 unmarried, 51 married and 18 widowed in the total population of the State. Both sexes marry early. Musalmans, both males and females, shew 3 per cent. more unmarried and 3 per cent. less married as would be expected since early marriage is less prevalent among them.

Jains.

47. As regards widowhood, Jain females stand first with 7 per cent. more than either Hindus or Musalmans. The inclusion of many Animists on this occasion among Hindus has tended to lower the figures for widows.

Jains show 6 per cent. fewer married males and females than Hindus. The age returns show that 1 per cent. more girls are wives at 10-15, while the number of unmarried after 15 is lower than that at 10-15. Widow marriage is less common than among Hindus, 63 per cent. at 40 and over being widows, or 8 per cent. more than among Hindus.

Animists.

48. The Animists show the least unmarried males about 1 per cent. less than Hindus and 4 per cent. less than Musalmans. Their females return the greater number of unmarried, giving 4 per cent. more spinsters than Hindus and 1 per cent. more than Musalmans. Among the widowed, Animist males are 16 and 17 per cent. less than Hindus and Musalmans respectively, and their females 4 per cent. less than either Hindus or Musalmans.

Proportion of sexes.

49. There are 83 boys and 56 girls married in every hundred at 10-15 to 78 boys and 41 girls among Hindus and 94 boys and 71 girls among Musalmans. The figures for widows of 20-40 are equal to those for Hindus and Musalmans, a fact due to the majority of Animists returning themselves as Hindus, but at 40-60 they fall by 13 per cent. below the two other religions, showing the general practice of widow marriage.

The figures for Hindus shew 47 boys and 133 girls in every 1,000 married between 5-10 years of age. At this age 16 more boys are married in the Plateau and 11 more girls than in the Hilly tract. This is what would be expected so far as the girls are concerned as the prevalence of the jungle tribes whose girls marry at a later age lowers the average.

Caste and marriage.

50. Among the selected castes, Minas stand first as regards boy marriage, the Kirars shewing 345 boys married between 5-12, while Chauhan Rajputs shew 317, Dhangars 271 and Gujars 242, Saiyads follow with 223, Ponwar Rajputs 222, Sanadhya Brahmaus 144, Gahalot Rajputs 104. The Gond and Saharia jungle tribes show a smaller number 144 and 10 respectively at this age and the next age-period 12-20 shewing a lesser tendency to child marriage.

CHAPTER VI.

EDUCATION AND LANGUAGE.

PART I—Education.

Statistics.

51. The statistics compiled in this Chapter are contained in Tables VIII and IX and in the Subsidiary Tables at the end. In Table VIII the literate population is distributed by age, sex and religion, while Table IX gives similar details for selected castes, tribes and races.

The test applied on this occasion was similar to that of 1901. On this occasion, however, to make the definition more certain, it was laid down that a "literate" person was one who could both write a letter and read the answer to it. This has made the test more stringent, and as the results prove, has excluded a large number consisting of those who while knowing their letters only were on the last occasion returned as literate.

Taking the whole population of the State, only 2 in every 100 persons can read and write. Among males 3 in every 100 are literate, while among females the proportion shows only 2 in every 1,000. The proportion of literate males at less than 10 years of age is 3 per 1,000, and it increases to 29 at the age "10—15" and to 47 at "15—20" and to 42 at "20 and over." The ratio of females at the age of "0—10" is 3 per 10,000 and at "10—20" 3 per 1,000; but it falls to 2 per 1,000 at "20 and over."

Education by Natural Divisions.

52. Of the two Natural Divisions the Plateau shows 2 literate persons per 100, half as many again as the Hilly Tract. On examining the figures for sexes the Plateau shows 39 males and 3 females per 1,000 and Hilly 25 males and 4 females per 1,000 males and 10,000 females literate.

Statistics of each Nizamat.

53. In discussing the figures for the districts as shown in the Subsidiary Table II, the Nizamat-i-Mashriq shows the highest proportion of 3 per cent. literate persons while the other two Nizamats show only 1 per cent. each. The high figure in the Nizamat-i-Mashriq is due to the presence of the City of Bhopal; excluding the City, the proportion in all three Nizamats is the same. In the case of the sexes the male proportions are equal in all the Nizamats, but in the case of females the Nizamat-i-Mashriq shows 4 per 1,000, Nizamat-i-Maghrib 1 per 1,000, while Nizamat-i-Junub, which is mainly Hilly, shows only 2 to every 10,000 females.

Education of Rural and Urban population.

54. The inhabitants of towns are more educated than those of rural districts, for the same reason it is found that in the total population of Bhopal City there are 90 literate persons per 1,000, 160 males and 20 females against 33 males and 2 females per 1,000 in the State as a whole.

Education in main religion.

55. Discussing the figures for each main religion, Jains show the highest ratio of 11 per cent., against Musalmans 6 and Hindus 1. The sexes show among males, 22 per cent. Jains, 11 Musalmans, and 2 Hindus literate, in the case of females, Hindus show the highest ratio of 2 per cent. against Musalmans 10 and Jains 2 per 1,000.

Education among important castes.

56. The diffusion of education among the numerically important castes in the State will be found in Subsidiary Table V. Among the different Hindu castes, Kesar Baniyas show 29 per cent. (32 males), the Gahohis 13 per cent. (27 males), Oswals 12 per cent. (21 males, 1 female), Mahesris 9 per cent. (27 males), Agarwals 5 per cent. (11 males), the others show less than 5 per cent. each. Among Brahmans the highest proportion is shown by Jijhotias 8 per cent. (16 males), Sarwaris 8 per cent. (13 males), Sanadhyas 6 per cent. (11 males), the others are below five per cent. Among Rajputs, Dikhit shows 33 per cent. (100 males), Khichi 7 per cent. (7 males), Parihar 6 per cent. (11 males), Gaur 8 per cent. (15 males), the others are below 5 per cent.; in the case of female education the Rajputs are far behind the other castes, as Gahalots show 1, Kachhwahas 4, Rathors 2 females per 1,000. Among Jains, Oswals and Porwals show 11 and 8 per cent. respectively by (24 and 17 males). Among Musalmans, Pathans show the highest proportion of 62 per cent. against Saiyads 16 and Shaikhs 6, in the case of the sexes, Shaikhs show 12 males against Pathans 11 and Saiyads 3, among the females, Saiyads have the highest proportion of 2 per cent. against Shaikhs and Pathans 1.

Literacy in English.

57. As regards literacy in English, the total population of the State shows only 1 per 1,000, 20 males and 2 females to 10,000. In examining the four age-periods, it will be seen that as regards males there is an increase from 2 per 10,000 at "0—10" to 15 at "10—15" and 34 at "15—20," but the ratio falls to 28 per 10,000 at "20 and over." In the case of females the proportion is very small as it shows 2 per 10,000 at "10—15," 7 at "15—20" and 3 at "20 and over."

Taking the main religions, Musalmans show the highest proportion of 40 persons, against Hindus 2 and Jains 10 per 10,000. As regards males, Jains show 20 against Hindus 10 and Musalmans 80 per 10,000; in the case of females, Hindus show 6 against Musalmans 3 per 10,000.

58. Compared with the figures of 1901, there are 12,935 or about 18 per 1,000 literate in all religions for both sexes of all ages, or 26 persons less, due to the adherence to the more accurate test applied on this occasion. The males show a fall of 46, females of 7 per 1,000, notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the Darbar to promote education of both sexes.

Compared with the previous Censuses.

Further comparison by age-periods is useless, as the figures of 1901 were abnormally high owing to inaccuracy of the definition of the term "literate."

59. A brief review of the figures compiled from departmental returns throwing light on the progress of education may be of use. The number of educational institutions and of scholars in the State is shewn in Subsidiary Table VI for each of the years 1911, 1901 and 1891. The figures indicate general improvement during the last two decades.

Departmental
statistics.

A comparison of the number of literate persons between the ages of 10 and 20 according to Table VIII and the number of scholars in educational institutions in 1911 shews that there are 2,356 literate persons as against 3,590 scholars. The difference between these two figures is mainly attributable to the fact that a part of the scholars in the institutions would be of over 20 years of age, with which the Census statistics do not deal and the exclusion of literate persons not on the school record.

60. No Newspapers or periodicals are published in the State save the State Gazette, which is circulated among the officials of the State.

Newspapers.

PART II.—Language.

61. The table dealt with here is Table X.

Statistics.

62. The dialects proper to Central India, all fall within the following two bands :—

Details of Dialects.

I.—Language of the Midland or Inner Band, Western Hindi, (Urdu, etc.)

II.—Intermediate Languages borrowed from both Inner and Outer Bands.

(a) More nearly allied to the Midland Languages, Rajasthani,

(b) More allied to the outer languages, Eastern Hindi, (Bagheli).

The languages proper to the State all fall within the first two bands as the Gondi and Korku of this tract are only bastard forms of Malwi, etc.

The Indo-Aryan tribes penetrating through the Punjab into the tract lying between the Himalayas and Vindhyas and Sirhind and Allahabad called Madhya-desh or the Middle-land, imported their own speech which, passing through Sanskrit, the Prakrits and the Apabhramsas, gave rise to what is loosely termed Hindi. This language is easily divisible into three, Behari, Eastern Hindi, (Bagheli) and Western Hindi, (Urdu, etc.)

Western Hindi, the language par excellence of the Middle-land, was first the Vernacular of the Gangetic-duab. From Delhi, a Persianised form spread later on with the extension of the Muhammadan dominion, and thus Urdu became the lingua franca of Northern India. In the intermediate group of tongues, the influence of the Middle-land language is predominant; the Malwi dialect is its most important form in this State.

As education spreads these tongues gradually approximate to a common form. But education has still much to do before it can have any appreciable effect on the local vernaculars of Central India, with their rough intonation and fine vigorous expressions. Outside the cities the absence of Persian words is very noticeable, especially in localities, remote from towns and in the language of ordinary cultivators. The headmen, who come into contact with officials, are more sophisticated and use mutilated Persian words more freely. Even the educated speak the local dialects almost exclusively in their own homes, where their women-folk would not, as a rule, comprehend the language which their husbands employ in public or when speaking in the presence of strangers. Among students and clerks a new lingua franca has arisen consisting of Urdu, Hindi, or Persian, as the case may be, freely interlarded with English words and modes of construction, which is employed even when the speaker is not really capable of conversing in English.

Thus the mass of Hindus, educated and uneducated, speak a local dialect with the members of their families. Away from home, Urdu, leaning more or less to Hindi, as the speaker is more or less educated, is spoken, this tongue being also used in talk with strangers, and when it is considered desirable to impress inferiors, as when an official is addressing villagers.

In the Bhopal State offices, Urdu is employed, save in village revenue-papers such as those kept by the Patwaris.

On this occasion particular attention was paid in the instructions for recording language. It was laid down that the language a man spoke every day in the bosom of his family (bhāsha, mātri-zabān) and not any school-acquired tongue or the speech used by him only in polite society or the bazars was wanted.

In Bhopal City, however, there was a strong feeling that not only all Musalmans but all Hindus, as subjects of a Muhammadan State should be returned as speaking Urdu. The Census Officer, by assiduous attention overcame this. An attempt was then made, however, by a pseudonymous writer to the Paisa Akhbar at Lahore, to make political capital out of these instructions and rouse antipathetic feeling between the Musalman and Hindu officials of the State, while he at the same time condemned the action of the Census Officer in carrying out the orders of the Census Superintendent.

It must be recollected that a record of local dialects is always difficult as philological distinctions are not, in many cases, recognised by separate names in the locality in which they are spoken, though these names are familiar to grammarians, while on the other hand variants are recognized locally which are not sufficiently distinct to be considered as separate dialects. A few dialects such as Malwi, Rangri, and Gondi are more or less generally recognised and are easily recorded, while the rest are apt to become merged in the general classification of Hindi.

Distribution.

63. The prevailing dialects in the State are Malwi and Urdu being spoken by 67 and 7 per cent. of the total population respectively. Of those speaking Urdu, 23 per cent. are returned in the Bhopal City.

CHAPTER VII.

INFIRMITIES.

64. The information collected in this Chapter deals with Tables XII and XII-A General Statistics and the Subsidiary Tables at the end of the text.

On this occasion in order to minimise the danger of missing the entries in column 16 of the schedule, the figures were separately abstracted on special slips. The same four infirmities are dealt with, as in 1901, viz., Insanity, Deaf-mutism (from birth), Blindness (total), and corrosive Leprosy.

This is only the second occasion in which infirmities have been recorded, but the figures for the previous Census are not available for comparison. In the present Census, the enumerators were instructed to enter the name of the infirmity in the 16th column of the schedule provided the person was blind of both eyes from birth, or deaf and dumb from birth or insane or affected with corrosive leprosy. Those who were blind of one eye only or who became deaf and dumb after birth or were suffering from white leprosy were not to be recorded.

Among the insane, many who are only weak-minded, are sure to be included. Deaf-mutism is particularly difficult to distinguish, although great stress was laid on the fact that those recorded must have been deaf and dumb from birth, and the returns prove that some persons suffering from senile deafness have been entered. Total blindness is easier to diagnose, as blindness of one eye is distinguished by a special Vernacular term kana. Real leprosy is often confounded with leucoderma, syphilitic disease, etc., and moreover is apt to be concealed except among the lower classes.

65. ~~The total number of persons suffering from this disease was 63 (males 45 and females 18) in the total population. In the Natural Divisions the Plateau shows 47 and Hilly Tract only 16.~~

Insanity.

The age and sex figures are dealt with in Subsidiary Tables II and III, which show the afflicted in 10,000 of each sex and per 100,000 of each period, as well as the proportion of afflicted females to 1,000 males.

The number of insane males is greater at 10—15 and 15—20, but in the case of females 20—25, 30—35 and 45—50 show greater number. At the age-periods 25—30, 40—45 both sexes are equal. As usual the number of insane males exceeds that of females, the ratio being 4 females to every 10 males. The ratio in the Natural Divisions are Plateau 5 females to 10 males, Hilly 2 to 10.

66. Deaf-mutism is a congenital defect and those who suffer from it are weaklings soon left behind in the race of life. An examination of the age returns, however, shows a rise up to 25—30, and in periods 45—50 and 55—60 and onwards in males, but in the case of females, there is a rise from 5—10 to 15—20 after which the number falls except at 50—55 and 60—65. The figures for sex show an excess proportion of females at 5—10, 10—15, 35—40 and 50—55. At 0—5 the figures for both sexes are equal, in other ages their ratio is less than for males. The proportion of females is 7 females to every 10 males. In the Natural Divisions, Plateau and Hilly show an equal number of 7 females to every 10 males.

Deaf-Mutism.

67. The figures show an excess of females over males. Examining the age-periods, the males show the highest number at 65—70 and females at 70 and over. The proportion is equal at 1—2, but males exceed at 2—3 to 4—5 and 15—20 to 35—40, 55—60 and 65—70. The proportion of both sexes shows an equal number.

Blindness.

In the Natural Divisions, the Plateau shows an equal number of each sex but Hilly an excess, 11 females to every 10 males.

68. In this case the figures for males exceed females. The highest number is at 40—45, the females exceed males at 25—30, 30—35 and 45—50.

Leprosy.

The proportion of females is 6 to every 10 males. In the Natural Divisions, the Plateau shows 7 females and Hilly 5 to every 10 males. The Plateau with its greater number of the towns stands first.

There is a leper asylum at Sebare in this tract, with however, only 32 inmates, (21 males and 11 females), which makes no material difference to the total. These persons were all born in Bhopal State.

Male lepers exceed females. This is a feature noticed wherever leprosy prevails, and though it may be due in part to concealment of female lepers, it cannot be entirely due to this cause, but to men being more liable to the disease.

Caste and Infirmary.

69. Among insane, Bania-Oswal shows 338 males per 100,000. Shaikh 53, Brahman-Bhagaur 51, Sanadhya 50, Pathan 35, Saiyad 25, but in the case of females, Bania-Oswal gives no return, Bhat stands first with 140 females, Brahman-Sanadhya 49, Saiyads 29, Pathan 23 and Teli 13.

Among the blind, Brahman-Shrigaur stands first with 1,299 afflicted in every 100,000, Bania-Oswal 1,014, Porwal 539, Mahesri 486, Shaikh 275, Bhil 223, Bhat 118, Brahman-Bhagaur and Saharia 156, Rajput-Rathor 152, Pathan 148, Rajput-Chauhan 143, Teli 141, Brahman-Sanadhya and Gond 126, Bania-Agarwal 115 and Rajput-Gahalot 112. In females, Bhat shows the highest figures in this case.

Among deaf-mutes, Brahman-Shrigaur shows 3,896 males in every 100,000, Bhat 363, Bania-Porwal 359, Bhil 223, Khangar 198, Bania-Mahesri 122, Shaikh 107, the others are less than 100. In females Brahman-Shrigaur gives no return, Khangar shows the highest return of 641 females, the Oswal 437, Mahesri 168, Bhat 140, Porwal 126, the others are less than 100.

Among lepers, Bania-Porwal shows 179 to every 100,000 and the Brahman-Bhagaur 51, Shaikh 38, Saiyad 25, Pathan 21, Gujar 19, Gond 4 and Chamar 3. In female returns, Brahman-Bhagaur shows 66 against 51 males, Shaikh 30, Gujar 22 and Chamar 6. It will also be noticed that while several castes show no females afflicted, due, no doubt, to concealment, only a few, in the case of insane, give a blank return for males.

CHAPTER VIII.

CASTE, TRIBE OR RACE.

General statistics.

70. The table discussed in this Chapter is Table XIII and the Subsidiary Tables at the end of the text. With a view to avoid incorrect names and to make the returns as correct as possible a caste index was prepared in the Central Office and circulated showing, from the list of 1901, the castes likely to be found. The enumerators were instructed that no entry which was at variance with the names given in the Index or doubtful should be made in column 8 of the schedule. If a caste name, not found in the Index was returned, the enumerator was instructed to refuse to enter it before making further enquiry. Many wrong entries were thus prevented. The caste return on this occasion is thus far more correct than in 1901.

Classification of castes.

71. The classification adopted in Subsidiary Table I, is that of traditional occupation, that is to say, a Bhil will be classed under forest, hill tribes etc., even if he is actually a Subadar in the Malwa Bhil Corps and has never been a professional hunter or fowler. In 1901 the classification by social precedence was introduced, an unsatisfactory method and one, moreover, which roused a good deal of antagonism between certain classes of the community.

Caste definition.

72. A caste for the purpose of this Chapter may be defined as, "An endogamous group or a collection of several groups bearing a common name who, by reason of similarity of traditional occupation and reputed origin, are generally regarded by those of their castemen who are competent to give an opinion, as forming a single ~~homogeneous community, the constituent parts of which are more nearly related to each other than they are to any other section of the society.~~" It may be noted that endogamy, traditional occupation and a common origin are the three principles on which caste is based.

Proportion in each main religion.

73. Examining the Hindu castes, the first point that is brought out is the enormous excess of Chamars over all other castes, they form 10 per cent. of the whole and 12 per cent. of the Hindu population, they are largely found in all districts, and show an increase of 31 per cent. over the figures of 1901.

The Rajputs come next, and show a proportion of 8 per cent. of the whole and 11 per cent. of the Hindu population. They show an increase of 32 per cent. over 1901, and are found mostly in Nizamati-Maghrib. Then follows the Balai, with a proportion of 5 and 7; they have increased by 44 per cent. since 1901 and are found mostly in Nizamati-Maghrib. The Brahman, Lodhi and Kirar, show nearly an equal proportion of 4 and 6; of these the first two, viz., Brahman and Lodhi show an increase of 9 and 16 per cent. respectively over 1901, but Kirar has an enormous increase of 23 per cent. due to better enumeration and rebound after the famine of 1900. Kachhi and Khati show an equal proportion of 3 of the whole and 4 per cent. of the Hindu population. Kachhi has increased by 10 and Khati decreased by 4 per cent. since 1901. Kachhis are found in all districts, but Khati chiefly in Nizamati-Maghrib. Then come Teli, Deswali, Koli, Kurmi, Ahir and Sutar, who all show an equal number of 2 per cent. on the total and 3 per cent. on the Hindu population, of these Ahir and Kurmi show a decrease of 5 and 4 per cent. as compared with 1901. They are found in all districts; Deswali predominates in Nizamati-Junub. Nai, Bania, Mina, Dhimar, all show an equal proportion of 1 and 2. In these Dhimar shows a decrease of 35 and Mina a decrease of 23 per cent. when returned as Hindus and Animists combined and compared with the figures of 1901. The other castes show a proportion of less than one per cent.

Among the jungle tribes, only the Gonds show a ratio of 7 per cent. to the whole and 8 per cent. to the Animistic population. They have increased by 33 per cent. since 1901. They are found in almost all districts but predominate in Nizamati-Junub.

Among Musalmans the Pathan and Shaikh show an equal proportion of 4 to the whole and 33 per cent. to the Musalman population. Pathans have increased by 24 per cent. while Shaikhs have decreased by 2 per cent. since 1901. They both predominate in Bhopal City. The other races are less than one per cent. each.

Caste and traditional occupation.

74. Subsidiary Table I gives castes and traditional occupations. The cultivating classes stand first with about 21 per cent. following their traditional occupation; forest and hill tribes and leather workers give 10 per cent. each, landholders 8 per cent., priests 6 per cent., domestic servants 5 per cent., carpenters 4 per cent., graziers and dairymen, weavers and carders, traders and pedlars, show 3 per cent. each. Fishermen, carders and oil pressers each show 2 per cent., tailors, writers, blacksmiths, toddy drawers, basket workers and sweepers, all show nearly 1 per cent. each; the rest all fall below 1 per cent.

75. Within the last twenty years, conditions have materially changed and though to a great extent easy communication has increased cohesion between different sections of the same community at the same time many caste restrictions are not so strictly adhered to. The first distinction to go was dress. Distinctive caste dress has almost wholly disappeared among the educated classes of the younger generation, the pagri has been replaced by a felt cap, safa and even sola hats, the angarkha by coats of European cut, the kurti and bundi by shirts, pajamas and dhotis by trousers, native juta by English shoes and boots and so on. Added to these is the practice of shaving after the Western fashion which gives no indication as to whether the person is a Hindu, Musalman, Anglo-Indian or Parsi, still less whether he is a Brahman, Rajput, Nai, Teli, etc. Formerly a man's caste could be distinguished at a glance by his peculiar dress. Travelling by rail and education in schools and colleges, where all castes sit on one bench has done away with pollution by touch or proximity while public institutions, such as hospitals, jails and boarding houses do not respect caste restrictions. Coming in contact with Western education and ideas, restrictions of food and drink have gone out of fashion and now high and low castes dine freely in public refreshment rooms served by Christians, Musalmans; and even low caste Hindus, while articles of food made in Europe and imported are generally eaten.

76. Agriculture is the principal occupation followed in the State and Brahmans, Banias, Rajputs and Chamars and even the Bhils all alike pursue it. The true agricultural castes form 21 per cent of the whole population.

Caste and occupation.

77. The real herdsmen are confined to four castes, Abir, Gadaria, Gaoli and Ghosi. They form 3 per cent. of the whole population.

Herdsmen.

78. Genuine craftsmen are included in the castes given in the inset. They form 8 per cent. of the total population.

CHAPTER IX.

OCCUPATION.

82. The statistics dealt within this Chapter are given in the Tables XV and XVI and the Subsidiary Tables at the end of the text.

Table XV is divided into five parts, viz :—

A.—General summary showing the number of persons for the whole State, the districts and the city of Bhopal following each occupation in the classified scheme to be presently referred to.

B.—Subsidiary occupations of the actual workers among agriculturists only, these being classed as :—

- (1) Rent Receivers (Landlords).
- (2) Rent Payers (Actual Cultivators).
- (3) Farm Servants and Field Labourers.

C.—Shewing for certain mixed occupations, the number of persons who returned each as their (a) principal (b) subsidiary means of livelihood.

D.—Distribution of occupation by religions.

F.—Shewing the statistics of factories in the State.

83. In 1901, all males and females who earned a living by their work or lived on private property, such as house rent or pension, were enumerated as actual workers and in the case of children and women doing no work, the occupation of the head of the family or of the person supporting them was returned. In the case of persons following dual occupations, the principal occupation was put down against them, and except where the subsidiary occupation was agriculture, the latter was shewn in a different column. All other subsidiary occupations were recorded, but their tabulation was neglected except in a few cases.

Comparison with the past and present Censuses.

84. On the present occasion, the system of enumeration remained almost the Occupation or means of subsistence of actual workers.		If dependent, the principal occupation or means of livelihood of actual worker on whom depended.

Principal.	Subsidiary.
8	9	10

same as in 1901. Three columns were provided in the schedule as shewn in the inset. Columns 8 and 9 were intended for the entry of principal and subsidiary occupations of actual workers, while in column 10 entries were recorded regarding the occupations or means of subsistence of actual workers supporting the dependents.

System of Enumeration.

85. The instructions to the enumerators on the cover were clear and the entries of occupations in the schedules were generally correct and owing to the simplicity of the scheme of occupations adopted on the present occasion, few mistakes were discovered in slip copying and tabulation. The occupations on this occasion were classified on the scientific system of M. Bertillon. This system has the great merit of elasticity. As adapted for India by the Census Commissioner, the scheme contains 4 classes, 12 sub-classes, 55 orders and 169 groups.

Occupation Entries.

In addition to the instructions on the cover very particular attention was paid to the directions issued and the instructions given to the enumerators in the schools on the recording of this information. As shewn above, three columns of the schedules had to be filled in. By means of detailed instructions and much training before the Census all that was possible was done to ensure accuracy. The most striking feature of the return is the preponderance of agricultural pursuits, nearly 56 per cent. of the total population being engaged in the exploitation of the surface of the earth for the production of raw materials. There is no extraction of minerals in the State. Nearly 20 per cent. of the population are maintained by the preparation and supply of material substances. Public administration and liberal arts show 5 per cent. and miscellaneous 20 per cent. of the total population.

86. Turning to the Natural Divisions the Hilly Tract shows the highest figure for agriculture 51 per cent. and the Plateau nearly 49.

Natural Divisions

87. When a comparison is made between occupations in villages and in Bhopal City, the occupations in the latter are seen to have distinctly urban characteristics, while those in villages and the other so-called towns, which are merely overgrown villages, are practically rural. As a rule, agriculture is the prevailing occupation in all villages while the industries, service in the public administration, domestic service, etc., are found in the city.

Urban and Rural Occupations.

The statistics of occupations usually followed in rural areas will be found in the sub-joined table :—

Village Community.

88. Out of every 100 persons 71 are supported by the village occupations shewn above. In villages, moreover, occupations are largely hereditary, a Kurmi will cultivate, a tailor will sew clothes, a barber will shave, a potter will make earthen vessels and receive in return their recognized share of grain when the crop is reaped. At marriages and similar ceremonies and dinner parties, they also receive food, money presents and clothes. Thus the inhabitants of the villages still, to a great extent, form within themselves an organised community which is competent to supply most local needs.

The urban occupations are chiefly those given below :—

Occupation.	Number supported per 1,000 in
	Bhopal State.	Bhopal City.
Public force ...	15	80
Public administration ...	27	149
Domestic service ...	32	112
Agriculture ...	499	49
Pasture ...	47	19
Textile industries ...	19	58
Food industries ...	5	20
Industries of dress and the toilet ...	62	50
Professions and liberal arts ...	6	13
Persons living on their own income ...	7	86

The occupations in the city differ widely from those of villages. Agriculture here supports only 5 per cent. whereas public force, public administration, etc., give employment to a very large number of persons. The fact that plague was rife has, however, materially affected this return.

Actual Workers and Dependents.

89. Subsidiary Table I shews the actual workers and dependents for all Sub-Classes and Orders. From this it is found that the number of actual workers and dependents for the State as a whole is 59 workers and 41 dependents in every hundred of the population. The largest number of dependents is found under Sub-Class V, Order 36, trade in building materials and the least in Sub-Class XII Order 54, inmates of jails, asylums and hospitals.

The first Order "Pasture and Agriculture" supports 396,572 persons or 54 per cent. of the population and gives occupation to 33 per cent. of the actual workers. The importance of this Order has necessitated its being sub-divided into 5 sub-orders though none of the other 54 orders is so treated. It is still further divided into 13 groups.

The term "Ordinary Cultivators" refers to those who grow the field crops and staple products of the season as distinct from gardeners, tea planters, etc., this group supports 212,160 persons or nearly 30 per cent. of the population.

90. The Natural Division figures show that on the Plateau and Hilly Tracts more persons engage in Agriculture than in any other Class or Order. The Plateau shows higher figures in Orders 1, 4, 12, 32 and also in Sub-Classes III, IV, VII, IX, X and XII. The Hilly Tract shows higher figures in Sub-Classes I, V, VI, VIII and XI and in Order 2 (Ordinary Cultivators) 315, in Order 3 (Agents, Managers of landed estates) 2, in 12 (Herdsmen, Shepherds, Goat-herds, etc.) 58, in 6 (Textile Industries) 19, in 13 (Industries of Dress and the Toilet) 63 and in 33 (Other trade in Food Stuffs) 34 per mille.

Detailed occupations in Natural Divisions.

91. Subsidiary Table IV shews occupations combined with agriculture, where agriculture is the principal occupation. Rent Receivers (Landlords) 624 in every 10,000 of the population are also Rent Payers, 126 per 10,000 are Labourers, 152 Money-lenders, and Grain dealers, 103 Priests; the other figures are all less than 100 per 10,000. Among Rent Payers (Cultivators) 6 in every 10,000 are Rent-Receiver, 96 Agricultural Labourers, 155 General Labourers, the remaining figures are insignificant. Among Farm Servants and Field Labourers 3 in every 10,000 are Rent Receivers, 27 Rent Payers, 124 General Labourers, 25 Cattle Breeders and 66 Leather-Workers.

Occupations combined with agriculture.

The total number engaged in raising animals is 32,077 or nearly 5 per cent. of the total population. Fishing and Hunting occupation supports 2,036 persons or nearly 3 per mille of the total population, 105,770 persons are supported by Industry or 14 per cent. of the total population. The most important industrial occupations are given in the inset table.

Of the 3,972 persons supported by Transport, 111 carry on transport by water, 1,621 by road of whom 939 are carters, drivers, etc. Transport by rail occupies 2,133 persons, and 107 by Post Offices, Telegraph and Telephone service. ✓

The 34,598 persons supported by trade are mainly traders in textiles and shopkeepers. They form nearly 5 per cent. of the population. Public administration in its various branches occupies 40,100 persons of these 11,264 are in Military Service, 1,170 in the Imperial Service, Police 6,680, and the other branches of the public administration 19,595 of whom 2,422 are the Darbar Officials.

The Professions employ 4,049 persons; Religion alone has 2,049; among these priests, ministers, etc., 510 catechists, etc., 64, temple, burning and burial ground 1,475.

The persons living on their private income number 5,092, they are practically all landowners or pensioners.

Domestic service supports 23,247 persons, of these 23,107 are indoor servants; they form 3 per cent. of the population.

Insufficiently described occupations number 102,762 or 14 per cent. of the population.

Unproductive, jails, asylums and like account for 21,325 of these, beggars number 20,947 or nearly 3 per cent. of the population.

92. Subsidiary Table VIII gives occupations by religion.

Occupation and religion.

Musalmans employed in agriculture, shew 27 per cent. against Hindus 57, Jains 22, Animists 66. The Muhammadan nature of the administration is shewn by the fact that Musalmans number 15 per cent. in Public Administration, against Hindu 1, Christians 7, Others (Sikh, Parsi, Jew, Arya) 50 per cent.

In Domestic Services, Musalmans shew 12 per cent. against Hindus and Jains 2, and Animists 1 per cent., Christians 7 per cent. In other occupations they number less than 10 per cent.

Jains, as would be expected, follow trade and shew trade in food stuff 27 per cent. against Hindus and Musalmans 3 per cent., others 2 per cent.

Animists are almost all engaged in agriculture where they shew 66 per cent. Christians are chiefly found in transport by rail where they number 38 per cent., against others 25 per cent. They shew 22 per cent. among persons living on their own income and 7 per cent. in the Police, Public Administration and Domestic Service, 6 per cent. in Medicine and Army, 5 per cent. in Religions, in other occupations they shew less than 5 per cent.

Others are mainly Sikhs and Parsis who are mostly engaged in Public Administration to the extent of 50 per cent., in Transport by Rail 25 per cent. and in the Army 10 per cent.

Caste and occupation.

-93. Table XVI and Subsidiary Table VI deal with caste and occupation. This shews clearly that now-a-days no caste adheres strictly to its traditional occupation.

Among Banias, Oswals are the most addicted to their traditional occupation shewing 70 per cent. while Porwals show the highest number engaged in cultivation of all kinds, 39 per cent.

Among Brahmans, Shrimalis shew 29 per cent. the highest number following the traditional occupation. In cultivation Sanadhya show the highest number, 30 per cent.

Among Rajputs, Bahadurias shew the highest number engaged in the traditional occupation, 57 per cent., and then Parihar 47 per cent. In cultivation Sengars shew the highest number, 48 per cent., and then Chauhans, 43 per cent.; Sisodias shew 41 per cent.

Among the other Hindu castes, Gujars shew the highest number engaged in their traditional occupation, 63 per cent. and then Sondhias and Telis, 58 per cent.; in cultivation, Telis shew 12 per cent. and in trade nearly 2 per cent.

Among Animists, Minas shew 76 per cent. adhering to their traditional occupation, next Kirars, 39 per cent. Bhil, 34 per cent.; in cultivation Kols shew 42 per cent, Kotwals 39, and Saharias, 21 per cent.

Among Musalmans, Shaikh-Behena shews the highest number following the traditional occupation, 26 per cent., Pathan 3 per cent.; in cultivation, Shaikhs shew 34 per cent., Pathans 27 per cent., Saiyads 23 and Shaikh-Behena 13 per cent. Among Beggars, etc., Saiyads shew 19 against Pathans and Shaikhs 8 per cent.

TABLE I.

AREA, HOUSES, AND POPULATION.

This Table shews for each Nizamat and Tahsil, the number of towns and villages, the number of occupied houses and the total urban and rural population, male and female. It also gives similar particulars for the British Station of Sehere. The total figures include the population of railways traversing the State.

2. The number of occupied houses has increased as compared with the figures of 1901, owing to the rigid adherence to the definition of a house which was adopted on this occasion.

3. For the purpose of Natural Divisions the State has been divided as under:—

Plateau.—All Tahsils of Nizamat-i-Maghrib, and Tahsils of Huzur Tahsil, Diwanganj, Piklon, and Begamganj of Nizamat-i-Mashriq and Tahsils of Sultanpur and Goharganj of Nizamat-i-Junub.

Hilly.—All the remaining Tahsils of Nizamat-i-Mashriq and Nizamat-i-Junub.

The area, houses, and population of these divisions for the State Proper are as below :—

Natural Divisions.	Area.	Towns.	Villages.	Occupied Houses.	POPULATION.

TABLE II.

VARIATION IN POPULATION SINCE 1881.

This Table shows the variation in population since 1881. Figures for Nizamats and Tahsils are not available for 1881 and 1891, and those for 1901 have had to be adjusted owing to re-organisation during the last ten years.

The population for the previous Census has been adjusted as below to compare with the figures for 1911.

TABLE IV.

TOWNS CLASSIFIED BY POPULATION WITH VARIATION SINCE 1881.

The number of towns has been increased by the addition of Raisen, which is of an historic importance and has urban characteristic.

The prevalence of plague, however, had the effect of reducing the normal population of Bhopal city and Sehore town as well as Berasia and Ichhawar.

TABLE VIII.

EDUCATION BY RELIGION AND AGE.

This Table shows the four age periods. It is also divided into four parts as Table VII. Part A shows the extent of literacy in the State as a whole for the total population and for each religion. Part B gives details for each Nizamat for religions. Part C shows similar details for Bhopal City. Part D gives similar figures for Natural Divisions. The Table shows the number of persons literate in their own vernacular and in English. Persons literate in English have also been shown separately.

TABLE IX.

EDUCATION BY SELECTED CASTES, TRIBES OR RACES.

This Table repeats the information given in Table VIII in respect of education, with this difference that in Table VIII the population is distributed by age and religion for the whole State, while here it is arranged according to selected Castes, Tribes, or Races.

The figures in the table do not agree with Table XIII, as they refer only to selected Castes, Tribes, or Races, the other castes being omitted.

TABLE IX.—EDUCATION BY SELECTED CASTES, TRIBES OR RACES.

TABLE XV.

OCCUPATION.

For the purpose of this table a classified scheme of occupation was prescribed by the Census Commissioner for India based on theory of M. Bertillon.

All occupations are divided into four main classes, these classes are sub-divided into twelve sub-classes, and the sub-classes are divided into fifty-five orders, and the orders are further divided into 169 groups. This table is divided into five parts.

Part A—Is complete in itself and deals with the population of the whole State and also for each Nizamat and Bhopal city.

Part B—Shows the subsidiary occupation of actual workers among the agriculturists only : it is also in three parts,

PART 1—for Rent Receivers.

PART 2—for Rent Payers.

PART 3—for agricultural labourers.

Part C—Shows for selected mixed occupations, only the number of persons who returned each as their (A) principal and (B) subsidiary means of livelihood.

Part D—Shows the distribution by religion of population of the State.

Part E—Shows the statistic of factories in the State.

TABLES XVII & XVIII.

CHRISTIANS.

In Table XVII, Christians are shown by their sect and race for the State as a whole.

In Table XVIII they are shown by race and age.

In this Table the figures for Native Christians are omitted, therefore, the total figure does not tally with that of Table XVII.
