SLX 553: Vyākaraṇa II

(Ajanta-puṁllīṅga-section (Vaiyākaraṇasiddhāntakaumudī) and Vākyapadīya (Brahmakāṇḍa) (Kārikā 44-112))

Credits: 4

Hours: 60

Objectives:

- To introduce the derivational foundations of nominal declensions with the study of the commentarial text of Ajanta-puṁllīṅga-section. It provides the application of fundamental principles of rule ordering and application and the usage of allied techniques to interpret the rules from the Pāṇinian grammar; and also the training in studying and interpreting traditional texts and in comparative analysis of traditional commentaries.
- To trace the philosophy of language through Brahmakāṇḍa of Vākyapadīya. It gives an introduction to the arthaparakriyā, i.e. process of expression of meaning in grammar.

Learning outcomes:

Students will have a comprehensive understanding of the application of rules while deriving nominal declensions. They will develop skills in interpreting traditional texts and verifying and comparing various commentaries available on them. They will have a good understanding of the basic terminologies which are used in the derivation of nominal declensions in Sanskrit. They will learn the causes behind the derivational variations found in these nominal declensions and also between the forms of nouns and pronouns. The students will be acquainted with the philosophy of language propounded by Bhaṭṭhari. Vākyapadīya Brahmakāṇḍa gives basic ideas of the concept of Sabdabrahman. It introduces the Sphoṭa principle of the grammarians, two kinds of words, relation between supreme word and spoken word, monists' and pluralist's view etc.

SLX 653: Vyākaraṇa IV

(Siddhāntakaumudī (Bhvādi) and Vaiyākaraṇabhūṣaṇasāra (Lakārārtha))

Credits: 4

Hours: 60

Objectives:

- To make the students familiar with Pāṇinī's Dhātupāṭha, roots enumerated in the Dhātupāṭha, their Pada division, Gaṇa division, and declension in the ten Lakāras, with the study of Siddhāntakaumudī (of Bhvādi section).
- To make them aware about the derivational process from root to its specific finite form.
- To understand the meanings of Lakāras expressing tense and mood, through the study of the section from Vaiyākaraṇabhūṣaṇasāra.

Learning outcomes:

The study of the Siddhāntakaumudī - Bhvādi-rules will give a clear idea of Pāṇinī's way of explaining verbal morphology along with its three fold division and declension of roots in ten Lakāras. This study will help the students to know the procedure of verbal declension in every detail, and will make them aware about the applicability and validity of the finite forms. The learners will be able to comprehend different tenses and moods expressed through verbs in Sanskrit language.
